Learning to speak a few handy words and phrases in Tagalog, which is sometimes also called Filipino, can make traveling in the Philippines much easier. Because of the Philippines colonial history, Tagalog contains many Spanish and English influences, which can make learning it a little easier if you have a background in one of those languages. But even if you don't speak English or Spanish, Tagalog is still not a particularly difficult language to pick up, so give it a try!

I think the working Tagalog/ Filipino we locals use is relatively easy to learn. Basically, the Tagalog we use now is a Hodge-podge of English and Spanish and Tagalog words (Tag-lish). If you can't remember the word in Tagalog, you can easily substitute an English word. Some English words have been tagalized by adding verb prefixes like say drive , add mag- before it Learning Tagalog words from scratch is no harder than learning new unfamiliar words in any European language. Interesting grammar! The good news is that Tagalog has no grammatical gender, no person or plural based conjugation, no grammatical cases like the dative and lacks many other features that could make it harder to learn.
